W. R. C. Observe Flag Day

Last Friday night the Woman's Relief Corps celebrated Flag Day with a very interesting entertainment. The guests of the evening were the persons who so successfully participated in "Me and Otis," a play given by members of Ballardvale lodge for the Corps a few weeks ago. Post 90, G. A. R., were also invited and were presented with $100.00
by the ladies of the order.

The program was wholly patriotic and consisted of an address by Commander
Hitchcock, speeches by different members of the Grand Army, the singing of "Columbia the Gem of the Ocean" and "Fencing on the Old Camp Ground" by the school children, violin solo by Marvin Ray, reading by Miss McGuire of Lawrence. A Reception of Colors was performed by eight children and thirteen of the little folks gave an exercise called "Building of the Red, White and Blue," in a very pretty manner.

After the entertainment refreshments were served. That the ladies of the Corps deserved special credit for their excellent management of the affair was the verdict of everyone.

Tuberculosis Class

It has been estimated that ten percent. of the deaths in Andover are due to tuberculosis. An effort has been started to form here a tuberculosis class similar to the classes which are being formed in so many towns under the auspices of the Out-patient Department of the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Such classes are conducted by lady visitors who visit regularly all patients affected with this disease, and try to convey instruction, and help personally, both scientific, sympathetic and financial, where it is necessary.

The Christian Civic League by its President and Secretary calls for a meeting of all those interested in this question at the Guild house next Monday evening at 7.30 p. m. Information will be given as to the working of these classes, and plans will be laid before the meeting for their institution in Andover.

KEEPING TAB ON THE WORLD

The President Advocates Federal Ownership of Mineral and Ranch Lands and Radical Programme of Income and Inheritance Taxation to Check Swollen Fortunes—Jim Hill Gloomily Predicts Government Ownership and Failure of Republic. Mayor Schmitz of San Francisco Convicted of Graft—Orchard on Stand Professes Religion—Hughes Vetoes Two Cent Fare Law.

POLITICAL

Vetoes Two Cent Fare Bill.

Disagreeing radically with the action taken by the governors of eleven other states which have put upon the statute books laws requiring railroads to carry passengers at 2 cents a mile, Governor Hughes of New York vetoed the two cent fare bill which had been passed by the legislature. The states which now have a two cent law in force are: Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Minnesota, Mississippi, Nebraska, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma and Pennsylvania. In his veto message Governor Hughes says that the time is too critical and the bill too arbitrary. He complains that the bill was not based upon proper investigation as to the justice of the lower rate, and thinks it represents a policy "seriously mistaken and pregnant with disaster." Although he agrees that the railroad corporations should be strictly supervised by the state and that they should perform their services at reasonable rates, he thinks that any injustice on their part does not justify injustice from the state toward them. The governor prefers that matters of this kind be taken up by the public service commissions recently authorized by law, and he questions the validity of the proposed law if it were enacted.

The Conference on Harriman.

The result of a formal cabinet conference upon the government's attitude toward the alleged illegal acts of E. H. Harriman and other railway manipulators was reported in Washington to be the determination to prosecute the Harriman companies or combinations, but not Harriman as an individual. It was said that they had not sufficient evidence involving Harriman in illegal management to justify his personal prosecution, and furthermore, that the evidence already given by Harriman concerning his transactions would insure him immunity.

Roosevelt Day at the Fair.

Georgia day at the Jamestown exposition was in reality the background for the figure of President Roosevelt in the act of staking out his political preserves or future hunting grounds. In the course of two remarkable speeches the nation's chief and admitted master of the Republican party advocated federal ownership of coal, oil, mineral and ranch lands, full employers' liability for all accidents to employees without regard to contributory negligence and the income and inheritance taxes for the prevention of swollen fortunes.

Accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, the president arrived at Norfolk on the yacht Mayflower early, and, taking the Georgia officials on board, he proceeded to review the great international fleet of warships representing seven nations. As they passed each ship saluted the president with twenty-one guns. Next the presidential party went ashore to dedicate the Georgia building, which is an exact replica of the home of the president's mother, Bulloch Hall, at Roswell, Ga., a courtesy which the president highly appreciated. It was during this address that the president urged the south to go on with its war against child labor in factories and declared himself responsible for damages on account of all accidents to employees, irrespective of negligence on the part of the injured. Thus he argued that the risks of labor would be diffused through the consumers in whose interest primarily the work is performed. He would have definite compensation fixed for all accidents, so that suits at law would be unnecessary. He said the railroads were prompt to ask the protection of the federal courts in times of riot and disorder, and it was equally proper that they should be held liable for accidents to their employees.

It was in his afternoon speech to the National Editorial association that the president denounced the private ownership of coal lands, arguing that "such mineral resources belong in a peculiar degree to the whole people." Under private control there was waste in the pursuit of profit. The mineral fuels were as necessary to our prosperity as the forests, with this difference that "coal does not grow and trees do." The same applied to the public range of the west. Reviewing the recent tax laws of European countries, the president emphasized his well known views in favor of the graduated income and inheritance taxes to compel the big fortunes to bear their share and to limit their size. This, he said, could not be in any way a tax on thrift or industry, but, on the other hand, it offered one method for preserving "a measurable equality of opportunity" for the coming generation. Nevertheless he hoped that our "superbly self-reliant individualism" would never be exchanged for a "deadening socialism."

Day Assails the President.

In his baccalaureate sermon at Syracuse university Chancellor Day charged that the courts, congress and legislatures had been overridden by the Roosevelt administration, saying that the lines between the different departments of the government were fast disappearing under an autocracy "as tyrannical and supreme as the world has ever known." The constitution has become a "mere elastic band to hold the states in compact at the adjusting will of the chief executive." The same sort of criticism Day applied to New York state in its recent enactment of the public utilities law at the behest of Governor Hughes. "And ours is a government by commissions," remarked the chancellor sarcastically. He referred to the recent shrinkage of six billions in values as a warning.

Railroads Oppose Two Cent Rate.

The representative of eighteen Missouri railroads has asked the United States district court at Kansas City to restrain the state from enforcing the 2 cent passenger rate law and also from enforcing the live stock rates enacted by the last legislature. The new passenger law was to go into effect June 14.

Recount Bill Goes Through.

Notwithstanding the mayor's veto of the bill authorizing a recount of the New York city mayoralty vote in the election of 1905, both branches of the legislature at Albany re-passed the bill and also adopted a supplemental act, according to the wishes of the governor, to overcome the objections of Mayor McClellan by authorizing him to designate any districts for recounting, the same to be done at the state's expense.

LEGAL-CRIMINAL

Orchard a Wary Witness.

For several days in succession Lawyer Richardson for the defense in the celebrated trial of W. D. Haywood at Boise, Ida., for employing Harry Orchard to kill former Governor Steunenberg, pursued the cross examination of Orchard concerning his confession of the series of murders and plottings. The witness with remarkable stolidity adhered in the main to his story and shrewdly refused to commit himself as to precise dates. At the same time Orchard readily owned up to a long list of other crimes, about which Richardson asked, including bigamy, burglary, larceny, gambling and various instances of lying. It was in regard to his having been secretly in the employ of the mine owners that the questioning brought the most damaging admissions.

E. F. Richardson.

This witness tried to explain on the claim that he was double crossing the enemies of the miners' federation.

Haywood in a telegram to the annual convention of the Western Federation of Miners at Denver said that Orchard was "the greatest liar of the twentieth century" and that he (Haywood) intended to take the stand to refute him, adding that he would be a free man inside of six weeks. The convention voted to continue its efforts for the defense funds. On the advice of the counsel for the defense, Eugene V. Debs, the Socialist leader, decided to remain away from Boise for the present, he having been engaged to represent the Appeal to Reason.

Orchard wept on being questioned about his alleged change of heart and admitted that McFarland's talk about the practice of giving freedom to criminals who turned state's evidence may have influenced him to confess.

Hard Coal Trust Prosecuted.

In the federal circuit court at Philadelphia the government filed a petition for an injunction prohibiting the Reading, Lehigh Valley, Lackawanna, Jersey Central, Erie and Susquehanna and Western railroads from continuing their alleged unlawful combination, along with their subsidiary coal companies, to control the anthracite coal supply. In a statement issued by the department of justice it was pointed out that the Pennsylvania, the Ontario and Western and the Delaware and Hudson were not made defendants in this suit because as yet no evidence of sufficient force to connect them with the alleged combination and monopoly had been found, but should such evidence be found in the course of the trial these roads would be similarly enjoined.

The petition recites that the defendant railroads control all the means of transportation between the mines and tide water, with the exception of those omitted, which reach only a limited number of mines, and that said defendants transport 71 per cent of the anthracite tonnage; that in their own name or through subsidiary companies controlled by them they control about 90 per cent of all the anthracite deposits and produce three-fourths of the annual supply; that the independent operators, who produce about 20 per

Unique Class Reunion

The Times-Herald of Newport News, Va., under date of June 12 has an interesting account of a charming reunion of former Abbot classmates of Mrs. Frank W. Darling, who was the daughter of Mrs. Gorton, a matron at Abbot some years ago.

The class luncheon was served at Cedar hall, at which alone participated the members of the class. The table decorations were in exquisite taste, the class flower, a dark red carnation, being the predominant feature. Menu cards were provided bearing on the cover a photograph of the academy and on the place cards was a group composed of the class portraits taken at the time of graduation.

The dinner consisted of nine courses, at the conclusion of which, Mrs. Dryden, president of the class, called the gathering to order. The following toasts were given: Alma Mater, Miss Alice Jenkins, Andover; Our Teachers, Mrs. Spofford, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Our Schoolmates, Miss Twitchell, Portland, Me.; The Philanthropists and Theologues, Mrs. Vary, Newark, N. J.; Our Class, Mrs. Lewis, Haverhill; Our Absent Members, Miss King, Red Bluff, Cal.; Our Class Officers, Mrs. Vilas, Milwaukee, Wis.; Our Class Babies, Mrs. Darling; Our Husbands, Mrs. Dryden.

A pleasant feature was the presentation of a silver loving cup to Mrs. Darling by her classmates. The members of the party spent the succeeding week in many interesting short trips to points of historic interest in the vicinity.

rent of the supply, cannot enter late competition because of the restraints imposed by the railroad. Further, the petition charges that these defendants have conspired to silence competition among themselves and to prevent the sale of independent coal, thereby establishing a monopoly, specifying in detail the contract entered into by these companies and between them and the independent operators; that the Erie exchanged its shares for a majority of those of the New York, Susquehanna and Western, a competing line, thereby putting an end to all competition between them, and that the Reading company pursued a similar course. It is also charged that twice in recent years the defendants have defeated the construction of independent railroads which would have permitted the output of independent coal. President Baer and other officers of the accused roads were summoned.

Brewers Ousted From Kansas.
The Kansas supreme court has granted a judgment ousting from the state the Anheuser-Busch Brewing association permanently. The receivers are continued in office and in possession of the property to execute the judgment of the court. The order does not contemplate the confiscation of the company's property except enough to pay the cost of the proceedings. As this was a test case, the judgment is expected to apply to all the brewing companies having agencies and warehouses in the state, and against these proceedings have been begun.

Receiver For Waters-Pierce.
Judge Brooks, at Austin, Tex., announced that he would appoint a receiver to take charge of the affairs of the Waters-Pierce Oil company in Texas pending an appeal from the verdict ousting it from the state. He justified this action on the ground that the company had declared its intention of continuing to violate the laws of the state pending an appeal of the suit.

Mayor Schmitz Convicted.
After Mayor Schmitz of San Francisco had taken the stand in his own defense and had flatly contradicted the testimony of former Commissioner Reagan as to protecting the French restaurants the climax of the trial came when the state called Abraham Ruef, former boss of the corrupt city machine and confessed acceptor of illegal fees, who had been on terms of intimacy with Schmitz. Ruef swore that he had divided equally with the mayor the $5,000 fee received from the French restaurants for protection from molestation and for the granting of licenses after the old licenses had been revoked. Ruef also testified to other divisions with Mayor Schmitz. On cross examination Ruef admitted that in return for his telling all he knew the state's attorney had promised to be lenient with him. The jury after being out two hours found the mayor guilty.

Pullman Company Denies It.
The Pullman Sleeping Car company has served notice on the Interstate commerce commission that the validity of the railroad rate act in so far as it has been applied to the sleeping car companies will be tested in the courts. This was in the company's reply to the charges made by George S. Loftus, a traveling salesman of St. Louis, the company denying that it is a common carrier or that its rates for berths are excessive or unreasonable. In any event, the company holds that the commission has no jurisdiction.

COMMERCIAL

Milliken Steel Plant Failure.
Milliken Bros., the company operating the big steel plant on Staten Island which has contracts for the steel work on the Pennsylvania terminal at New York, were put into bankruptcy Monday on the petition of four creditors. The liabilities being put at $650,000, of which over half were unsecured. The assets were estimated at $800,000, and the attorney for the company said the creditors would be paid in full if they were patient. The business will go on. The failure is generally regarded as the result of "too much prosperity" in the shape of extensive orders beyond the capacity of the plant, contracts on hand amounting to $5,000,000.

Bank Deposits Called In.
The treasury department has issued a call for the return by July 10 of $30,000,000 of public deposits received by the national banks since Sept. 27, 1906. This is expected to maintain the status of the money market, as the amount recalled is smaller than that which the government will pay out July 1 in redeeming the 4 per cent bonds which mature on that date.

Failure to Break Stock Exchange.
The failure of A. E. Appleyard, a broker and promoter, was announced on the Philadelphia stock exchange as a result of his effort to illustrate the virtue of the Lawson recipe for putting the exchange out of business. He had dumped about 15,000 shares of United Gas Improvement stock upon the market, thus forcing the price down three points, but the break was not what he had predicted, as the traders, being suspicious, had called upon him for a deposit of security or money against his sales. This was what caused his failure. If within six months he does not settle his indebtedness he will be expelled from the exchange, and the proceeds from the sale of his seat will be divided among his creditors. It will be recalled that the hero of Lawson's story made a fortune by selling stock short without capital, a plan which Lawson contended was perfectly possible under the rules of the exchange. He offered $5,000 to any one who should prove that it wasn't possible. Appleyard was at the time of his plunge under indictment for complicity in the wrecking of the German Bank of Buffalo.

FOREIGN

Wine Growers Worry France.
The opposition of the wine growers in the south of France to the output of cheap, adulterated stuff sold as wine by wealthy corporations in the north of France has taken a new and startling turn with the active assistance of the municipal officials in the principal cities of the wine growing section. The mayors and councilmen have resigned and the collection of taxes has almost entirely ceased, while the soldiers refused point blank to fight the populace of the disturbed districts. In the chamber of deputies Minister of Finance Caillaux announced the government's determination to suppress the wine frauds and that to all wine growers who should change their crops taxes would be remitted for five years. Serious rioting occurred at Montpellier after the resignation of the council. The leader of the movement, which now includes hundreds of thousands of people, says the time is not yet ripe for violence. M. Jaures, the Socialist leader, proposes a state monopoly of alcohol and sugar on the lines of the existing tobacco and match monopolies.

M. Jaures.

Premier Clemenceau announced that the government would not accept the resignation of the municipal officers, at least for thirty days, during which time they would be held legally responsible for any irregularities or damage to property in their respective districts. He reminded the mayors that the local treasuries would be bankrupted by refusal to pay taxes and that the government would refuse to make the advances necessary to meet the local expenses. Altogether some fifty local bodies in four provinces have resigned. The strike continues in the form of passive resistance so far.

Strike of German Seamen.
The Hoboken branch of the German Federation of Seamen has issued a notification that in view of a general strike having been declared by the German Federation of Seamen and Firemen they will not be responsible for any accidents, stoppages, riots, etc., occurring on the large German transatlantic lines during the continuance of the strike. They further state that the fight is not for mere wages, but for existence, and they intend to carry it to a finish, asking only for the fair play which is due every honest workman in his right against oppression, misery and slavery.

Nicaraguans Against Warlike.
June 11 news came from Mexico City that the Nicaraguans, assisted by Salvadoran revolutionists, had captured Acapulco, Salvador. The Nicaraguans first bombarded the fort from a gunboat and then landed troops. It was believed that the objective point was San Jose, Guatemala, and that President Zelaya of Nicaragua had declared war against Guatemala. Later the Salvadoran minister at Washington received dispatches from President Figueroa, saying that the Salvadoran troops had routed the revolutionists at Sonsonate, and that the latter were endeavoring to reembarc at Acapulco, being hotly pursued. The minister was also informed that these revolutionists had approached Acapulco on the Nicaraguan gunboat Momontombo, armed and officered by President Zelaya. The Nicaraguan minister at Washington, Senor Cores, expressed doubt, however, that Nicaragua had anything to do directly with the landing of the revolutionists.

It would not surprise American officials if this movement were the signal for a general revolt in all the Central American countries notwithstanding that the treaty of peace signed at Amapala two months ago bound Nicaragua and Salvador to submit their differences to arbitration by the United States and Mexico. President Zelaya is credited with an ambition to form a union of the Central American countries to be known as the Central States of America and with himself as first president.

Slayers of Barrillas to Die.
Dispatches state that Florencio Morales and Bernardo Mora, the Guatemalans who assassinated General Barrillas, ex-president of Guatemala, have after two days' trial been sentenced to death. Mora confessed that he was instigated by General Lima, aid to President Cabrera of Guatemala, who gave him $500 to kill Barrillas.

Viscount Tanii, leader of the opposition in the house of peers at Tokyo, and Count Okuma, the retired head of the progressive party in Japan, have been quoted in certain opposition newspapers as taking a decidedly unfriendly attitude toward the United States on account of the persecution of Japanese in California. Tanii's alleged statement is that the people of Japan must appeal to arms should diplomacy fail to bring a satisfactory solution, and he adds that "America will yield, for its people are radically commercial in their sentiments." This new outburst of anti-American feeling among the anti-government section of Japanese politicians is generally believed to have been stimulated by the aggressive and organized movement of Japanese residents on the Pacific slope. Certainly this sentiment has found no echo in the majority party or the government of Japan. What has given exceptional seriousness to the situation is the attention paid to the matter in the European press and the reported offer of friendly mediation on the part of the French government. Nevertheless the council of the progressive or minority party in Japan on Monday did adopt formal resolutions setting forth that the persecutions in San Francisco had nullified the treaty between the two countries and that their continuance reflected on the federal and state authorities. In view of these facts it was urged that the government take steps to maintain the dignity of the empire and safeguard Japanese rights.

Hague Conference Opened.
When asked if he thought there was any danger of war with Japan Secretary Taft said: "War with Japan? Don't you believe it. Never mind the news that keeps coming. It doesn't always mean all it seems to on the surface. We will have no war with Japan, you may rest assured of that."

Last week delegates to the second peace conference at The Hague arrived and exchanged visits in anticipation of the opening of the session, which occurred June 15. Count Nelidoff, on behalf of Czar Nicholas of Russia, delivered the opening message, as representing the nation which had initiated the conference. There were present representatives of twenty-three governments which were not represented at the first Hague conference, including China and all the Central and South American republics.

INDUSTRIAL

Telegraphers' Demands Ignored.
When the directors of the Western Union Telegraph company held their monthly meeting without noticing in any official way the demands made by the Telegraphers' union, the members of the union were indignant, and talk of proceeding to a strike was general. If such a strike were called it was expected to involve the Postal Telegraph company as well, as the same kind of grievances are said to exist in the Postal offices. The failure of the board to notice the memorial of the union was taken to mean an indorsement of President Clowry's reply when the complaints were first made. This was that there had not been any discriminations against any class of employees and that the 10 per cent advance in wages had been paid uniformly. President Small of the Telegraphers' union issued a statement saying that he was now not so sure that grievances could be adjusted without serious trouble. The Civic federation has been taking an active interest in this controversy, but its advances have not been met favorably by the company.

Longshoremen's Strike Fails.
The strike of some 30,000 freight handlers along the docks of New York city was declared off Thursday, after having been in progress for six weeks, by a vote of the union membership. The men will return to work at the wages they were receiving, but the companies have agreed not to discriminate in taking back the old employees, new men being retained where competent.

Kansas Wants Field Workers.
The free employment bureau of Kansas has issued a call for 19,578 men and 3,400 teams from outside the state to assist in the harvesting of the big grain crop now officially estimated. The harvest hand rate of a cent a mile is again in vogue from all points where the bureau has a representative.

Brewery Workers Expelled.
President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor has revoked the charter of the International Union of Brewery Workers because of its refusal to accept the terms of the federation. The brewers had refused to obey the order that engineers, firemen and teamsters must withdraw from the union.

SOCIOLOGICAL

Government Ownership Inevitable.
James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern, upon arriving at New York gave to the press an interview in which he said that eventually he believed that the government would be forced to lend its credit to the railroads in order to finance their necessities, based upon the demands of the public for better conditions of the service, and that this would eventually lead to government ownership of the railroads. He added, however, that if such a thing comes to pass it would mean the end of republican government. Mr. Hill also said there had been a general slowing up in business during the past year or so, and he thought this tendency would continue.

In regard to the matter of the breaking of steel rails he did not hesitate to charge that the steel trust was trying to make too much money by working overtime and otherwise failing to put out a first class article. He said his experience was that the open hearth rails were more breakable than the Bessemer.

Root as an Optimist.
In his closing lecture at Yale on the "Responsibilities of Citizenship," Secretary of State Root pointed out that the present outcry against rebates and prosecution of rebating corporations "is not evidence that we are growing worse, but evidence that we are growing better, that our government is applying a higher standard of justice in the control of public utilities." He reached this conclusion after reviewing a long series of discreditable events in American history, dating back to revolutionary days. He referred to the days of the Credit Mobilier scandal, when stock of powerful corporations was peddled to law makers who were to pass upon measures affecting those interests, and added that such a thing would not now be tolerated. He said that the rebating for which great corporations are now pursued are merely a form of discriminatory rate which once prevailed without objection. All railroads did it thirty years ago, and "that was the way they built up their business and the country through which they ran." But people began to look at it differently and note the injustice of such methods. It was an "advance of moral standard which gave life to laws which had been dead before."

SCIENTIFIC

Record Plunge of Octopus.
The performance of the submarine boat Octopus when it sank to the depth of 205 feet below the level of the ocean off Boston harbor is unparalleled in the naval history of the world. At that depth the pressure of the sea was ninety pounds to every square inch of the boat's surface, but not a bolt or a seam was disturbed, nor was there a sign of a leak, and the wonderful vessel made the trip back to Boston under her own power. During this plunge it was thought unsafe for the crew to remain in the vessel, and they remained on board the accompanying tender, lowering their craft to the bottom by means of cable and derricks. It required fifteen minutes for the Octopus to sink to the depth of 205 feet. She is now ready for her acceptance trial.

Aeroplane Balloon Falls.
The first test of the combination of a dirigible balloon and aeroplane constructed by Santos-Dumont, which was made recently at Paris, resulted in complete destruction of the machine. It consisted of a balloon shaped like a cigar twenty-three yards long and three and one-quarter in diameter at the center, hitched to two aeroplanes directly underneath, and a frame carrying a fifty horsepower motor, with a screw 400 centimeters in diameter, the whole being eighty kilograms heavier than its bulk in air. The machine started all right and skimmed along over the grass a short distance until the rear of the aeroplanes suddenly lifted and caused the front end of the balloon to strike the ground, so that the whole thing collapsed.

Famous Doctor Opposes Drugs.
Sir Frederick Treves, physician to the king of England, speaking at the opening of a London hospital, expressed the belief that the time was not far when bottles on doctors' shelves would be reduced to a very small number and when people would "leave off the extraordinary habit of taking medicine when they are sick." At that time people would resort to simple living, suitable diet and plenty of sun and fresh air. He said the time would come when it would be as anomalous for people to die of scarlet fever, typhoid, cholera and diphtheria as it would be for a man to die of a wolf's bite in England. He referred to the discoveries in bacteriological science as being capable of reducing mortality from infectious diseases to the zero point.

FRIDAY, JUNE 21, 1907.

A distinct compliment was paid the representative from Andover yesterday in the action of the Legislative Committee on Railroads in reporting unanimously the "Cole bill", with some minor amendments, designed to effect the consolidation of the N. Y., N. H. & H. and the Boston & Maine railroads. The issue involved is probably the most important that has come up in Massachusetts in the past fifty years, and has attracted wide-spread attention because of the many intricacies attendant upon legislation that should cover both foreign and domestic corporations. The bill introduced by Speaker Cole, and now approved by the committee, approached the question from the new position of asserting the right of the State to regulate the power of any public service corporation to vote stock. The wide difference of opinion held as to the right of the State to control actual stock transfers was entirely ignored, and upon the new theory now promises to rest the question of the efficiency of Massachusetts law in restraining an out-of-the-state railroad corporation from controlling the affairs of a domestic railroad company.

The other principal feature of the bill that has been approved covers the process of law under which the great question of a consolidated railroad may be ultimately settled. With an efficient stay of proceedings that are not in accord with Massachusetts laws, the second great issue as to the merits of the question is in order. Many men are strongly convinced that such a consolidation as is being promoted would prove extremely beneficial to the State and its business interests. Under the "Cole bill" time is provided for a full and intelligent consideration of the merits of such a claim.

Provision is made for an easy bringing of the matter before the railroad commissioners, for a hearing upon all the technical features involved, and for a report of their findings to the next General Court for final action. Every contingency that could be thought of as to stock watering, increased fares, and other public interests, has been looked after, and the measure as a whole is being widely approved. One of the strongest endorsements that could come, for a measure fraught with such importance to business interests, is quoted in the following approval given by the Boston Merchants' Association through its legislative chairman, who says in Thursday's Transcript:

"The discussions of the association and the action taken by it as well as the general opinions gathered by us among the business men of the city indicate very clearly two facts. First, that the business men of Boston are not prepared to state that the New Haven-Boston & Maine merger is necessarily a bad thing for the city of Boston. In fact, under certain conditions and proper regulations, there is a strong feeling that good may come of it. On the other hand, the feeling is apparently equally strong that there is not sufficient information before the public at the present time to enable the community to form a proper opinion on the subject. The causes leading to the merger, the forces back of it, and their bearings on the welfare of Massachusetts are not clear; and there are indications that the whole story has not been told and that there is something more in the situation than appears on the surface."

"I think I am well within the truth in stating that seventy-five per cent. of the members of the Boston Merchants' Association, as well as the business community generally, believe that any legislation enacted hastily at the present time should contain two fundamental ideas. First, ample time should be given for full investigation and consideration of the subject in all its bearings, and second, such action should now be taken as can legally and properly be taken to keep the question in its present condition until ample time has been given for such consideration. And we feel that the Cole bill more nearly than any other is framed along these lines."

While the bill is not yet a law, the best opinion seems to be that it is bound to pass after due deliberation in both branches.

Editorial Cinders.

Congratulations to Phillips and Abbot upon the splendid anniversaries which have marked during the past week, the sending out of two more splendid classes from these two famous institutions. Those who take henceforth the favorite walk along "Indian Ridge" will find at the northern end of the Ridge a boulder in which is set a bronze tablet, bearing this inscription:

"In memory of Miss Alice Buck, by whose loving interest and untiring exertion the perpetual use of this woodland by the people of Andover was secured in 1897."

Those friends of Miss Buck who provided this memorial believe that it expresses the gratitude of a great company. They rejoice in thinking that the memory of an act of service worthy representing a life of rare nobleness and beauty is to hallow this place so dear to this departed friend.

Commencement

A class of seventy-seven young men was graduated at the 129th commencement exercises held at Phillips Andover academy Wednesday, including three young Chinamen whose graduation was witnessed by the retiring Chinese minister, Sir Chentung Liang Cheng, himself a graduate of Phillips Andover.

This was the second visit of the Chinese minister to his old school at Andover since his graduation and as on the occasion of his first visit—some years ago his presence added much to interest in the anniversary exercises this year.

Sir Chentung was the guest this year of the class of 1892 which held its quin-decennial reunion.

The Chinese students who graduated today are Yih-Sing Wong, who was born in Canton, China, March 1, 1889 and who is going to continue his studies at M. I. T. next year; Sen-Yan Yung, born at Canton, March 7, 1888, who has been preparing for Cornell; and Yew Yung Chan, a native of Shanghai, who will enter M. I. T. in the fall.

Frank Thomas Holley of this city was awarded the Pales prize of $25 for excellence in history. The cup for the best scholar and athlete, given each year by the Yale club of Boston, was awarded to John Reed Kilpatrick of New York City.

The commencement speakers and their subjects follow:

"Minstrelsy in Mediaeval Times," Edward C. Wheeler of New York City; "Oliver Wendell Holmes," Henry Gemmer of Hackensack, N. J.; "Andover Thirty Years Ago," William A. Harris, Jr., of Springfield; "The Panama Canal," Joseph Thomas West of Princeton; "Dante's Debt to Virgil," Howard T. Foulkes of Milwaukee, Wis.; "The Night After Thanksgiving," Newton H. Foster of Winthrop.

Graduating Exercises

Last night saw the Town Hall filled with relatives and friends of the class of 1907 to witness their closing exercises for the year. The stage was very prettily decorated for the occasion with boughs and bouquets of flowers. In the centre was a great mass of yellow iris and over the stage was the motto of the class, "Animo et fide" in evergreen.

About eight o'clock the school, led by Roy Hardy, president of 1908, marched in and were seated at the right of the hall. Next came the graduates, led by Clarence O'Connell, vice president of 1907, and they proceeded to the stage.

Each of the young ladies carried a beautiful bouquet of flowers, pinks and roses predominating.

After all were seated, the exercises were opened with prayer by Rev. J. Edgar Park and the program was carried out in a very creditable manner.

Rev. Frank R. Shipman presented the M. E. Guttererson Botanical prizes which were awarded to Miss Mildred Jenkins, $5, and Lewis Lindsay, $3.

The presentation of the class gift, a beautiful statue of Diana, was made by Philip Hardy, president of 1907, and it was accepted for the school by Roy Hardy, president of 1908.

All the selections on the program were lyrics and descriptions of them.

Alumni Dinner

A feature of the annual dinner of the Phillips Andover academy alumni association in the Borden gymnasium yesterday was the presentation of a valuable loving cup from the alumni to Sir Chentung Liang Cheng, the Chinese minister to the United States who was the guest of honor.

The presentation was made at the close of Sir Liang's address by F. H. Simmons, '94 of New York city in behalf of the alumni.

On one side of the cup bears the American and Chinese flags crossed and on the other side the seal of Phillips Andover academy and the following inscription:

"Presented to Sir Chentung Liang Cheng, Andover '82, at his 25th anniversary by the alumni of Phillips Academy at Andover, Mass., as a token of their esteem and appreciation." Sir Liang was evidently much impressed by the gift and he feelingly told the alumni that he should take the cup back to China with him, treasurer it always and leave it as one of his most precious heir looms for his family.

Rev. Henry Hallam Tweedy, '87, of Bridgeport, Conn., president of the general alumni association, presided.

The following officers were elected: President, Henry L. Stimson, '83, of New York city; vice presidents, James H. Crosby, '57, of Bangor, Me., Charles Daniels, '74, of Chicago, Daniel T. Torrey, '77, of Providence, William G. Scamffer, '82, of Lakewood, N. J., Raymond L. Weeks, '87, of Columbia, Mo., Hollon A. Farr, '92, of New Haven, and Richard H. Edwards, '97 of Madison, Wis.; statistical secretary, George T. Eaton, '73, of Andover; secretary, Frederick E. Newton, '93, of Andover; treasurer, Bernard M. Allen, '83, of Andover; executive committee, Franklin H. Mills, '89, of New York city, George N. Henning, '90, of Washington D. C., Charles H. P. Schweppé, '98, of Chicago, and Southard Hay, '98, of Pittsburg, Pa.

Sir Liang was the first speaker presented by President Tweedy. The distinguished guest spoke warmly of his school days at Andover and said that he had him pleasure four years ago, soon after presenting his credentials to the President, to take a train for Andover to pay his first visit to the institution since his graduation in 1882; and that he had taken the opportunity, now that he has been summoned back for work at home, to visit once more the scenes of his student days before leaving the country.

He said that all alumni of Andover are proud of the institution and that he felt under great obligations to the school as his three years at Andover had been of great advantage to him in the four years of his official life in this country. He related how the incident of his making the three base hit in the Andover-Exeter baseball game in 1881, which won the contest for Andover, affected his standing after he came here. President R. Sewell told him that an Andover student he met in one of his hunting trips in the west had informed him that he thought the new Chinese minister was the Chinese boy that played on the Andover nine in the '80s and won a championship game by a hit. "When I assured the President that I was the same person," said Sir Liang, "from that moment the relations between President Roosevelt and myself became ten-fold stronger and closer."

In closing, Sir Liang said that China has adopted American educational methods that he was glad to see so many Chinese boys at Andover, where

"not only the classics and sciences are taught, but also the true ideal, the sense of fair play for our fellowmen, so necessary to attain success in life", and that he hoped Chinese young men would continue to come here in increasing numbers.

The other speakers were Dr. Endicott Peabody of Groton school, Principal Alfred E. Stearns of the academy and Daniel N. Torrey, '77, of Providence.

Class 1892 Reunion

The class of 1892 of which Sir Liang was the guest during his present trip to Andover, held its quin-decennial reunion, the following members of the class returning for the event:

Philip R. Allen of East Walpole, William L. S. Brayton of Fall River, Hollon A. Farr of New Haven, Robert T. Francis of New York City, Ralph D. Hood of Bradford, F. H. Ladd of Andover, Herbert E. Lang of Dorchester, Rev. George E. Lake of Chelsea, Vt., George X. McAnathan of Washington, D. C., George S. McLaren of New Haven, Rev. George E. Merriam of New York City, Alfred D. Fardee of Philadelphia, Charles H. Newman of Andover, Byron U. Richardson of Pawtucket, R. I., Frederic E. Newton of Andover, Burt W. Slover of Norwich, N. Y., Philip Ripley of Andover, Augustus P. Thompson of Lawrence, Dr. John P. Torrey of Andover, Prescott Warren of Newton and Daniel B. Wents of Philadelphia.

Officers were elected as follows: President, George X. McAnathan of Washington; vice president, Fred E. Weyerhaeuser of St. Paul, Minn.; secretary, Rev. George E. Merriam of New York City; treasurer, Philip R. Allen of East Walpole; advisory committee, Fred S. Fales of New York City, Daniel B. Wents of Philadelphia, Charles A. Crawford of New York, James H. Knapp of New York, John DeForest of New York, Frederick P. Frank of Boston, Dr. John P. Torrey of Andover, and Augustus P. Thompson of Lawrence.

The class occupied a reserved table at the dinner and displayed its banner and several placards recalling incidents of the old school days.

One conspicuous statement, Sir Liang's only Andover regret is that he was not a member of the class of '92" caused an amused smile to light up His Excellency's face when he read it. Turning to a member of the class he said: "I was here 10 years ahead of you, but all Andover men are really in the same class!"

Abbot Commencement

bers of the graduating class. The song was as follows:

As we gather 'round, dear Linden,
Hear our prayer to thee,
Of our class of nineteen seven.
Be the symbol pure;
Show that though we're gone, our love
For Abbot will endure.

When the winter winds do blast thee,
And thy life seems cold,
May the thought that we strive like thee
Make thy courage bold.
And when spring's refreshing power
Gives thee life again,
May we from thy good example
Firmly faith attain.

May our motto be life's "watchword,"
"Not to seem, but be,"
Daily filling our own places
With humility.
Then each year will see us nearer
To our aims in view.
Till we see the work completed
That God bade us do.

The ivy planting by the college preparatory senior class followed. Miss Clara Jackson Hukill of Franklin, Pa., president of the college preparatory class transferring a trowel to Miss Eyer, president of the college preparatory class of 1908.

NATURE PROVIDES FOR SICK WOMEN

a more potent remedy in the roots and herbs of the field than was ever produced from drugs.

In the good old-fashioned days of our grandmothers few drugs were used in medicines and Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., in her study of roots and herbs and their power over disease discovered and gave to the women of the world a remedy for their peculiar ills more potent and efficacious than any combination of drugs.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Is an honest, tried and true remedy of unquestionable therapeutic value. During its record of more than thirty years, its long list of actual cures of those serious ills peculiar to women, entitles Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to the respect and confidence of every fair minded person and every thinking woman.

When women are troubled with irregular or painful functions, weakness, displacements, ulceration or inflammation, backache, flatulency, general debility, indigestion or nervous prostration, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

No other remedy in the country has such a record of cures of female ills, and thousands of women residing in every part of the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable compound and what it has done for them.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. For twenty-five years she has been advising sick women free of charge. She is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and as her assistant for years before her decease advised under her immediate direction. Address, Lynn, Mass.

The first attraction of the summer season at beautiful Glen Forest Park will open on Monday afternoon, June 24, and the management of that popular resort have selected a high grade vaudeville bill to start the ball rolling for the summer.

As in years gone by, the attractions for Glen Forest will be booked from the offices of Joseph J. Flynn's Amusement Company with headquarters in New York and Boston. And during the summer they are promised with much that is new in the way of advanced vaudeville, and perhaps a short season of the newest musical successes. It has been decided not to attempt the production of any of the old time pieces as it is now certain that they no longer attract.

Among the artists who will appear on the programme starting next Monday are: Holmes and Holliston. They are presenting their original rural comedy sketch. Adams and Kirk, premier American xylophone artists, recently returned from a highly successful engagement at the Empire Music Hall in London. E. N. Reid and his acrobatic bull terrier, last season's principal feature in Hannon's Superba. The Zarellas' European gymnasts, in feats of strength and daring, and last but not least, Jones and Sutton, a pair of nimble footed darlings, in singing and dancing have made them favorites in all of the leading American theatres. The custom in vogue in other seasons of performances every afternoon and evening will again be carried out this season and the management announce that a lengthy program of high class moving pictures and illustrated songs will be presented every Saturday night.

COLONIAL THEATRE

SATURDAY LAST PERFORMANCES OF THE OPERA COMPANY IN "OLIVETTE"

To the Colonial Patrons:

The vaudeville and opera seasons, which close Saturday at the Colonial Theatre have been the most successful in the history of the theatre. I think everyone will agree that our vaudeville programmes have been better than ever before, and this was the result of the amalgamation of the Keith, Proctor, Hammerstein and Williams forces, which amalgamation gave us control of a greater number of vaudeville features. The hearty, unprecedented response which the Andover public gave to these programmes during the season is sincerely appreciated and will be remembered when the next vaudeville season is inaugurated. We have always endeavored to give for popular prices, shows worth twice the money, and we are aiming to make the next season one that will be remembered with keen pleasure by our patrons.

The comic opera season was most successful, and the many letters of commendation on the excellence of the organization were sincerely appreciated, and are hereby acknowledged. I thank you most heartily for your patronage and hope to merit a continuance of the same in the future.

Yours very truly,

J. FRED LEES.

The Bradlee school gardens have attracted no little attention in Ballardvale. Early in the spring two beds, 36 by 14, were prepared. One bed was given to Grades IX and VIII, while the second was divided among the lower grades, with the exception of Grade I, which had no garden. Mr. Haggerty generously contributed a load of fertilizer from the Engine House stable for the Grade IX-VIII garden and the children of the other grades brought dressing from home for the garden of the class in which they were a member. It was possible to give the older scholars individual beds and considerable attention has been given to these separate plots.

At first lessons were given on the preparation of soil and seeds. These were followed by illustrative talks on roots and destructive insects; also the care and watering of plants. Lettuce, onions, peas, carrots, tomatoes, radishes and several varieties of flowers were planted. Last week onions and radishes were marketed and $1.06 was received. This money constitutes a fund of which a treasurer has been appointed and a bank account is to be opened, called "The Bradlee School Garden Fund."

The boys of the different classes are to take care of the gardens during the summer and as the crops mature they will market them.

For the Fourth

A regular meeting of the Fourth of July Committee was held in the Town house on Wednesday evening. Reports given by the subscription committee showed that although a fairly large sum had been collected there is not enough money contributed yet to insure a celebration such as is hoped for and unless money comes in faster some of the events which have proved popular in past years will have to be omitted. There is still a little over a week in which to raise the sum required and it is hoped that everybody will subscribe to the fund.

The souvenir tickets will be issued early next week and will be sold at the same price as last year, 25 cents. The next meeting of the committee will be held next Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

CLASS SONG

To Punchard

Once again we're here assembled,
One last time before we part,
As we oft have met together,
Hand in hand, and heart to heart.

Though we grieve for one another,
Most of all we grieve for thee,
Thou hast sheltered us and guided,
Taught us what we ought to be.

For we learned to love thee, Punchard,
In those swiftly passing days,
And to thee our hearts and voices
Lifted off in songs of praise.

But our high school days are ended;
From thy arms we venture forth
Into that wide world that bid us:
"Come ye hither. Prove your worth."

Yet thy precepts still shall guide us:
As they guided us of yore;
On the past that lies behind us
We must build the life before.

So with "animo et fide"
Let us do our part in life,
Till the last, low summons calls us
Home from out the battle's strife.

Gratia L. Prouty.

After the exercises were over a reception was tendered to the Seniors by the Juniors. After this refreshments were served and dancing enjoyed until the party broke up.

Wedding.

SHATTUCK—O'CONNOR

A very quiet wedding took place Wednesday afternoon, at three o'clock, at St. Augustine's rectory, when Miss Florence O'Connor was united in marriage with Charles Shattuck of Ballardvale. The bride was very becomingly gowned in a dress of champagne colored tulle. Miss Helen O'Connor, the bride's sister, was bridesmaid and Joseph Murphy was best man. A short reception and supper followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's mother which was attended by the immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties.

The happy couple left on the 9.48 train for a short wedding trip. They will reside in Ballardvale.

A Pleasant Surprise

On Friday afternoon, June 14th, the Mothers of the Indian Ridge Club surprised Miss S. Elizabeth Dodson, Pres. of their club, while at her work in the Indian Ridge school. Mrs. Bruce presented Miss Dodson with a very fine picture of the Bridge of Sighs and a pair of silver desert spoons as a token of the appreciation of her work with the children and her interest in their club. Miss Dodson responded in words suitable to the occasion.

The afternoon passed very pleasantly with singing, music and games. Light refreshments were served by the Mother's committee. The afternoon closed very appropriately with singing "Auld Lang Syne."

Obituary.

M. WARREN TUCK.

Late on Tuesday night, June 11, there passed away one of Andover's life-long residents, widely known and well esteemed. M. Warren Tuck was born on the River Road in West Andover, July 11, 1836, the son of John and Hannah Tuck. He lived in the home where he was born until 1896, when his father bought the house near the West church, where the rest of his life was spent. He was a member of Co. H., First Heavy Artillery, being mustered in in July, 1862, where he served for two years.

By trade Mr. Tuck was a shoemaker, carrying on his business in a little shop on his own land as was the custom at that time, until the small shops were crowded out by the big concerns. After he gave up shoemaking, he worked at carpentering for the Smith & Dove Mfg. Co., but for the past five or six years he has lived a retired life at home, as his health was not of the best.

Mr. Tuck was married in 1870, to Miss Mary F. Hill of Andover, who survives him. Death came very suddenly after a few hours' suffering from an attack of heart trouble. Mr. Tuck having retired in apparently as good health as usual.

Funeral services were held on Friday afternoon, June 14th, from his late home, Rev. J. Edgar Park officiating. The interment was in the West cemetery.

Births

In Bradford, Wednesday, June 19, 1907, a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bodwell.

In Andover, June 20, a ten pound son to Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Sherman, Main street.

In Andover, June 4, a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Ernest S. Scott.

Stevens Social Club Lawn Party
This afternoon and evening June 21, a lawn party is to be held on the grounds of the Stevens Social club on Pleasant street, near the corner of Osgood street. There will be a concert and dancing. Admission, 25 cents. Special cars for Lawrence and Andover at 11.55.

FROM AN ANDOVER WINDOW

JOHN UNDERWOOD

On Taking a Holiday

Hurrah! The holidays are near. Some of us get a week off, some a month, some a day once in a while, but all of us except the grumblers and the loafers can get a holiday now if we want one.

What are we going to do? The root principle of all holidays lies in the words "take it easy." Whether you are going to take your holiday in a hammock in your back yard or in a concentrated dose of Europe, keep this principle in mind. In your work days you have to catch your train and get up in the morning; in your holidays it does not matter whether you do or not. Do not make yourself a slave to some preordained plan, but live from hand to mouth and if someone on the steamer makes you long to go to Iceland, then cancel all your plans for Paris and Florence and go to Iceland and have a good time. Never go to bed saying, now we must be up at six tomorrow to catch the train for Rag-jag, but get up in the morning when you're tired of the bed, and if you feel like spending all day in bed, do so. In fact most European travellers would enjoy their trip much more if they spent every tenth day or so in bed.

Mrs. Underwood and I always read some good holiday book on our holidays. Something that has the "easy" quality in it too. Last year we took one of the princely of holiday books, Kenneth Grahame's "Golden Age," and we promise a happy holiday to all couples who have that with them.

I think it is quite possible to spend such a holiday without being a hog, though I met more hogs among the tourists in Italy than I ever saw anywhere else, the stockyards of Chicago not excepted. When one is living the unbraced, natural, holiday life, one's whole selfishness comes to the surface too easily. So I advise as one of the necessary ingredients of a good holiday the remembrance of this fourth principle, that there are other people in the world who like a good time as well as you.

You friend in the hammock, get out once in a while and let your wife have a holiday of a couple of hours while you wash the dishes!

And you dear sir or madame, remember that the poor misguided, untellable foreign people and even the tourists have human hearts not unlike your own!

Above all, you innocents abroad, when you feel like expressing too frequently that unconquerable pride in America and making constant audible comparisons with the institutions of other countries, just hum to yourself for warning Stevenson's gem:—

"Little Indian Sioux or Crow,
Little frosty Eskimo,
Little Turk or Japanese,
Oh don't you wish that you were we?"

Marks of Beauty

Andover Village is fair in these June days, but the West Parish and the "Districts" are fairer. Yet the village has some specialties in beauty peculiar to itself, and among these I give admiring place to the horse-chestnut trees. I have never noticed before how many of these beautiful trees the village possesses. We never exhaust the loveliness of the earth. There is always some new fairness to discover. Perhaps this June's gift to me was the horse-chestnut trees.

The best place for the blossoms is on the tree. Nevertheless, if they are taken from the tree, they still retain their large, broad decorative beauty. I noticed this on Sunday in the South Church. The Abbot girls had them, combined with magnificent dark red peonies, for the adornment of the pulpit; and it was a pleasure to look at that massed beauty. I refer to the flowers; but of course the Abbot girls were also fair to see.

The Prettiness of Andover

Of course there are prettier places than Andover, even in Massachusetts. Not for us, the beauty of the Berkshire Hills. Nearer than they, the Newtons and Brookline and Winchester are pretty in certain ways which can be attained only with greater wealth than Andover possesses. It is in its own class and with the due limitations that I come back to Andover and think, with a great satisfaction and a new pleasure, that it is an unusually pretty place.

One reason for this is that it is an unusually neat place. Its women may be seen, clad in undecorated dresses, hovering among their decorations of flowerbeds and window boxes. Its men are servants to their lawn-mowers, particularly the married ones. Its holidays are cleaning-up days instead of picnic-days. In all this we may go too far and become slaves to our passion for neatness; but for my part I rejoice in the evidences of loving care for grass and flower and leaf which I see when the trolley brings me in from Wilson's Corner, from Reading, or from Lawrence.

The A. V. I. S.

The Village Improvement Society has done a great deal for Andover. It has done much by its direct work in improving this or that patch of ground; but it has done more indirectly in turning people's thoughts towards flowers and shrubs and well-kept lawns.

Now I confess to a suspicion of late that the A. V. I. S. was becoming stiff in the joints. It came to me, therefore, as a surprise and a reproof the other day to notice a bed of shrubbery on Hidden Road, near the car track, and this bed of shrubbery was tickled, "A. V. I. S."

"A capital idea!" cried John Underwood; and again I say, A capital idea and a bright one. Those shrubs will add immensely to a road which, save at that one spot, was among the prettiest in Andover.
